

MEN BEING EXAMINED FOR SERVICE

Sections Receiving Master Lists Summon Those Drafted Without Delay

ACCEPTED MEN TO MOBILIZE IN THEIR OWN STATE FIRST

Second Call for Men Not Anticipated Necessary Until Next Year

Washington, July 25.—The race between states for the honor of being first to fill their quotas under the selective draft was on today in earnest. Calling up men for physical examination began today in several regions. Meanwhile, details of the machinery for actually calling the accepted men into service and sending them to their mobilization camps are being worked out. Provost Marshal General Crowder has already ruled that the claim of the army attaches to any registered man as soon as the local selection board has posted him as accepted and from that time on, unless he is exempted, he will be subjected to military law and the articles of war. Failure to appear when called will bring the military forces of the Provost Marshal General in search of the missing man, and he will be tried for any violation of regulation before a court martial. This ruling was necessary in order to enforce the prompt compliance of all accepted men with the army orders.

To Nearest Cantonment

It appears probable that the accepted men when the mobilization order for the new army is given will be first assembled in their selective board headquarters. Their distribution among the sixteen cantonments, General Crowder said today, would be governed by two rules—first, the section of the law requiring that they be assigned as far as possible to duty with troops from their own states, and secondly, the location of the nearest cantonment to reduce the transportation problem as much as possible.

No information has reached General Crowder indicating that there will be any need to summon a second draft in addition to the 687,000 men now called for during the present year. General Crowder said today he had understood that the draft machinery would not need to be employed again during the present year although it will be kept intact. Estimates to cover the second increment have been submitted, but he pointed out, because all these expenditures must be made in advance of a call to have equipment and quarters ready for the men and must be actually on hand when the call is made.

LENINE MAY BE ISOLATED DURING WAR

New York, July 25.—Information that the Russian provisional government has decided to terminate the apparent pro-German activities of Nikolai Lenin, the radical socialist leader, by arresting him and many of his followers, has reached the Russian information bureau here. These advances indicate Lenin will probably be shot if he is convicted as a spy working to the interests of Germany, but if not convicted, he will be isolated during the war. This last measure, it is explained here, would be adopted as a precaution against the presence of "a crazy man" in politics in this crisis.

DUNN CENTER WOMAN DIES FROM INJURIES DURING CAMP MEETING

Mrs. Anna S. Rasmussen Hurt in Automobile Accident—Succumbs at Minot

The remains of Mrs. Anna M. Rasmussen of Dunn Center, who passed away at the home of William Sparling in Minot as a result of injuries sustained in an automobile accident at Logan on July 2, while attending a camp meeting of the Latter Day Saints, were transferred here yesterday from the Soo line to the Killdeer branch and taken to Dunn Center, where funeral services will be held today.

The accident resulted in injuries to Mrs. Rasmussen's spine which were complicated by an attack of pneumonia. The deceased was 55 years old and was the mother of 11 children, of whom 13 are living.

Press Man on British Craft Relates Thrilling Encounter With Torpedo

Destroyer Stops and Projectile Just Missed Side of Boat Going Down into Swirl Caused by Engines

A British Port, on the Southeast Coast, July 25, (by mail).—Just how a British destroyer acts when attacked by submarines was unexpectedly demonstrated to an Associated Press correspondent while traveling on one of the modern oil-drive torpedo boat destroyers from France.

The correspondent had been taken on board the destroyer to observe the methods of destroying the submarines when attacked, a torpedo missing it by a scant six feet, thanks to the vigilance and quick action of the crew.

Warning Shout.

The destroyer was one of a certain number which were conveying some of the large transports carrying British troops to France. The group of ships was half way across the channel, when suddenly one of the lookouts saw a pair of twin periscopes rise for a moment a few inches out of the water a half mile away. They were gone the next instant, but almost before they had gone came the shout: "Submarine on port bow."

Guns Swung Into Action.

On every ship things began to happen more quickly than the telling. Guns were swung in the direction from which the submarines had been seen, ready to speak if they appeared again. Torpedo tubes were likewise swung into lines, and the numerous anti-submarine devices along the decks were in the hands of their skilled, expert crews.

Saw Torpedo Coming.

But even while this was being done, came the torpedo clearly level with the deck, its gleaming brass body glistening in the bright sunlight, its propellers sending it at the rate of express train speed, straight toward the destroyer. Something was wrong with the mechanism of this particular torpedo, for it should have traveled 12 or 15 feet below the surface. Instead it came sounding along in plain sight, leaping out of the water like a flat stone made to skip over the surface. Even thus it might have found its target, but for the presence of mind of the 60-year-old coxswain. He had been first to sight the periscope and rushed immediately to an emergency lever, whereby he instantly stopped the port engines, thus switching the ship with a lurch to the left. The torpedo whizzed by, through the water six feet behind the stern of the destroyer, and sank into the swirl of the engine.

KAISER SEES GERMANS FORCE RUSS--RETREAT

Berlin, July 25.—The advance of the Austro-German forces in eastern Galicia continues uninterrupted by the war office announcements. Tarnopol has been captured and the Germans are nearing Buceacz.

Emperor William watched the German troops repulse Russian attacks from the plains of the Sereth river between Tarnopol and Trembovia, it is officially announced.

WAR BILL FOR ONE YEAR IS 17 BILLIONS

Washington, D. C., July 25.—America's war bill for the fiscal year will total $17,000,000,000, Senator Smoot told the senate today, instead of the $11,226,000,000 he estimated yesterday. The increase results from $500,000,000 for the shipping board, $2,000,000,000 for the allies and $150,000,000 deficit in the executive department.

Rains Help In Bottineau and Bismarck Field

Although the thermometer at the government weather bureau registered but 91 at 3:30 this afternoon, the heat was felt as much as any day of the summer, because of the unusual degree of humidity. Prospects for showers were reported to have passed for the time being, late this afternoon.

Five hundredths of an inch of rainfall yesterday and 26 last night have materially helped crop situations in the vicinity of Bismarck, although considerable more moisture could be used. The only other station reporting any great amount of rainfall last night is Bottineau, with .32 inch. About half of the remainder of North Dakota stations reported precipitation ranging from .14 to .15.

This morning the storm was centered over Williston. Bismarck is in line for more showers today, but tomorrow clear weather may be expected again, and milady who desires some nice fresh rainwater for shampooing raven or golden tresses had better get it while the getting is reasonably good.

The present tempest originated in far-away Alaska several days ago, and has been working down through the Canadian Rockies. It made a strenuous effort last night to pass up Bismarck altogether, but a stiff east wind chased it back again, and it grudgingly gave the slope its medium of moisture.

GRANDFATHER OF F. H. KENDALL IS KILLED

A M. Kendall, Garden City, Minn., grandfather of F. H. Kendall of Bismarck, was struck by lightning and killed instantly Tuesday evening at Lark, N. D., where he had been visiting his daughter, Mrs. M. Leathman. Mr. Kendall was 91 years of age and was returning from the postoffice in a storm when he was struck.

He was a pioneer of Minnesota and had come to North Dakota to spend a few weeks with his children.

SECOND LOT OF GUARD IS CALLED TODAY

Troops From Twenty States Come

Under President Wilson's Proclamation

TO BE SENT AT ONCE TO SOUTHERN TRAINING CAMPS

On August 5 All State Militia Will Pass Out of State Control During War

Washington, D. C., July 25.—The second increment of national guard troops were called into the federal service today. All troops from 20 states came under President Wilson's proclamation prepared to mobilize in southern training camps to be trained and outfitted for duty abroad.

The remainder of men from far western and southwestern states will be taken on Aug. 5, when the draft clause of the national defense act will be applied to the entire force, and the guard-men will cease to have any connection with the state authorities for the period of the war.

The first increment, which included the New York and Pennsylvania divisions, was called out July 15, and has been held up at state armories for preliminary equipment or started south to the training camps. The same process will be carried out with the men called out today and the federalization of the force for war purposes will be completed Aug. 5. Thereafter, there will be no constitutional or other legal barrier to the immediate transportation of guard organizations to France.

Irish Convention to Settle Disputes Opens Conference

Dublin, July 25.—The convention which is to attempt to reach a solution of the Irish problem was opened this morning at Regent's House, Trinity palace.

John Redmond, the nationalist leader, and Joseph Devlin, one of his prominent party associates, were among the early arrivals. Protestant and Roman Catholic clergymen arrived soon after. At the appointed hour all had taken their places in the assembly hall. Joseph Devlin was the only delegate who was cheered.

MADE VICE ADMIRAL

Secretary Daniel has appointed Rear Admiral Grant vice admiral in reorganizing the Atlantic fleet. Vice Admiral Grant may soon be relieved of commanding the submarine fleet for service in foreign waters.

Submarine Campaign Says German Paper Alienates Former Friends of Nation

Lemons and Onions Only Fresh Goods Displayed on the Markets

Drought Has Taken All the Vegetables

Copenhagen, July 25.—A remarkably frank article by the Berlin correspondent of the National Tidende passed by the foreign office censorship discusses the seamy-side of the submarine campaign and the effects it has on neutrals. It is generally recognized, he says, that the longer the campaign continues, the fewer friends Germany will have after the war. This consideration together with the thoughts of the many billions, which another six months would cause were the principal factors which influenced a majority of the Reichstag into line for a bid for immediate peace. The correspondent says that it is generally admitted that the effect of the campaign has been miscalculated not regarding the amount of tonnage destroyed, but as to the time required to make its effect felt in England. The German people are still convinced that they will succeed if they be given time, and they themselves are able to hold out.

Disappearance of Children

The correspondent gives as two of the most striking impressions upon his return to Berlin of the disappearance of children, who have been sent to the country in thousands, and the new type of Berliner, a lank individual with skin hanging in folds, who had supplanted the corpulent German. A few have lost less than 15 pounds in weight, many more than 30, but they are healthy and usually improved. Another feature is the disappearance of vegetables, owing to drought. Green groceries display only lemons and onions.

COUNTY OFFICERS IN NORTH DAKOTA LIABLE TO DRAFT

Governor Frazier's Construction of Regulations Confirmed in Wire From Crowder

INDIAN JUMBLE RESULTS FROM DOUBLE NUMBERING

County officers between the ages of 21 and 30, inclusive, are not exempt because of their official capacity, from draft.

This news will come as a shock to county officials all over the state who have been resting on their official rights and believing themselves exempt. Governor Frazier last night wired Provost Marshal General Crowder that under the laws of North Dakota any county officer may be filled by appointment for the unexpired term, and asking whether under these conditions it was not true that men of draft age serving as county officers would not be excluded from the classes held constitutionally exempt. General Crowder replied this morning that Governor Frazier's construction of the regulations in this respect is correct.

Awaiting Advice.

Charles Leissmann is still awaiting advice from Washington as to the credits due the various counties for the men assembled in federal service at Fort Lincoln. A majority of these credits will go to Burleigh, Morton and Stutsman counties, from which the companies of the Second battalion which have not yet reported credits, were recruited. Stark county's credits have been reported, but there may be some changes in the net quota as this county as well as others from which men have been drawn for Companies A, F, K and H. Aside from these changes, the net quotas will stand practically as reported in The Tribune last week. Mr. Leissmann was informed today that the belated report from Washington, may be expected this evening or tomorrow morning, when the tabulation of all net county quotas will be completed.

Lists Next Week.

Official draft lists placed in the mail at Washington yesterday, probably will not reach the adjutant general's office until Friday or Saturday, and it is not likely that duplicate copies can be furnished all county exemption boards until the middle of next week. Men drafted in the first division, therefore, need not expect notice to appear for at least five days to come.

Must Get Off Boards.

Advices from Washington today are that men eligible to draft who are serving on county exemption boards must be replaced. A number of changes in county boards already have been made, and others are to follow.

Indian Jumble.

Mr. Leissmann is still at a loss to know what to do with lists of Indian registrants received by the county boards in which the registration was made after their lists of registrants had been serially numbered. The Indian registration lists were numbered by the Indian agents, and were not filed with the county boards until July 15. Naturally the serial numbers borne by these Indian lists conflict with the numbers appearing on the regular county lists, and if adopted would result in two men being drafted on the same number in reservation counties. Provost Marshal General Crowder's instructions are to treat these registration cards the same as any others which were filed with the board too late to be numbered. In this instance, however, the Indians were registered prior to June 15, as required by the regulations, and they cannot be penalized because the Indian department red tape resulted in the names reaching the state board late.

Cooks Wanted.

The quartermaster corps of the North Dakota national guard is now complete, except as to one important lack. Two good cooks are needed. They must be cooks, says Captain W. A. Nickley, and crackerjacks. The pay is good, and the work will be pleasant, though heavy.

Project in Number of Counties Found to Be Acceptable

Work on Federal Aid Highways Will Proceed Soon in Cass, Richland, Traill, Griggs

State Engineer Jay W. Bliss, who also is secretary of the state highway commission, is back from an inspection of federal aid highway projects in Cass, Richland, Traill, Griggs and Foster counties, made in company with Assistant Federal District Engineer Seales of St. Paul.

Engineer Bliss reports that these projects were found acceptable to the district office, and that the process of procuring federal and state aid may be expected to proceed without undue delay.

SLAV FORCES DEMORALIZED STILL RETREAT

Expectations that Galician Withdrawal Will Not End for Some Time

APPROACHING TO LINES HELD BEFORE OFFENSIVE

Germany Admits That it Has Not Men to Spare for an Extended Movement

(By Associated Press.)

Russia's shaken armies in Galicia are still in retreat, which bids fair not to end until they reach an approximate line occupied by them last year before General Brusilov began his big offensive. Despite this extensive retrograde movement, covering the whole front between the north Galician border and the Carpathian foothills, the tone of both official and unofficial dispatches coming out of Petrograd is not pessimistic.

Apparent Confidence.

There is apparent confidence that the disorganization in the ranks induced by the machinations of the extremists and believed to have been promulgated by German intrigue, will be dealt with and a firm front again presented to the enemy.

For one thing, the Germans, by their own admissions have not the men to spare to prosecute a sustained offensive on a large scale on the eastern front. The British on the front are keeping them too busy and they are too apprehensive of some extra forceful stroke in the west to transfer any great number of troops from the Franco-Belgian war area.

The Russians have big reserves of men, and Premier Kerensky will find it possible, it is believed, to weed out the disloyal element rapidly from the front ranks and replace them with the hosts of dependable troops, which Russia still possesses.

Victors on Alsace Front.

The strength of the entente position in the west has just received a fresh illustration on the Alsace front. Here the French have just emerged victors in a long drawn out struggle for the possession of the important high ground in the Craonne region. Yesterday's brilliant attack gave General Petain's troops new possessions in almost complete measures of the fighting areas, gained by the crown prince in his costly series of attacks. The French even pushed beyond their old lines at some points.

This morning came the test of the German reaction. It was directed against the positions recaptured by the French on the California plateau. Although delivered after a bombardment, it was entirely futile, the French regaining the ground and consolidating their gains.

WOMAN REGIMENT OF RUSSIAN ARMY IS UNDER FIRE

Petrograd, July 25.—The Russian woman's battalion raised by the twice wounded girl officer, Vera Butchareff, was in action on the front yesterday for the first time. They are reported to have been successful, although the battalion suffered losses, the extent of which is not yet known.

The correspondent puts it that the women behaved in a way which gained the respect of the men.

Washington, D. C., July 25.—An announcement was made today at the White House that Theodore Brent, vice chairman of the shipping board, has tendered his resignation, but that it had not been acted on by President Wilson.

Hazleton, N. D., July 25.—Editor Gorbun of the Emmons County Record lost a wager on Mrs. H. A. Goring as the prize potato grower of Emmons county by eating the evidence. Mrs. Goring presented a nice basketful of 1917 model potatoes to the editor; he crowed about them in the next issue of the Record. When friends called upon him to substantiate his wild claims as to the virtues of these potatoes, he couldn't make good, for he hadn't been able to resist the temptation to have them served creamed.

MILTON'S FAMOUS MAN OF MYSTERY ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Captured as He Came Out to Feed Wild Man Proves Lumber Jack; Uses Knife

Milton, N. D., July 25.—Milton's famous mystery man, captured by Sheriff Thompson and by checks to the amount of $400 found on his person identified as W. L. Tedd, who has a family residing at Crookston, Minn., where he formerly was in the employ of the Robertson Lumber Co., while in custody at Grand Forks, awaiting the arrival of authorities from Minnesota, attempted to commit suicide by slashing himself with a knife. Tedd for weeks terrorized the people of Milton by hiding in a coulee from which he made frequent sorties to neighboring farm houses. For a long time he eluded capture, although the coulee where he had his lair was raked over time and again. He was taken when he ventured forth from his hiding place to purchase food.

BUILDING OF GREAT NORTHERN EXTENSION BECOMES UNCERTAIN

Shipping of Material Back to St. Paul Indicates Several Years' Delay

Schafer, N. D., July 25.—E. O. Mundy has begun the task of hauling the large quantity of construction material used in building the grade for the Great Northern between here and New Rockford, on the Little Missouri river, 20 miles southeast of here, to the end of the line at Watford City, whence it will be shipped to St. Paul. Included in the lot are 100 tons of steel rails and 75 to 100 dump cars. From the latter the woodwork will be burned, and the iron will be scrapped for old metal. The fact that this material, hauled into the Bad Lands at a heavy expense, is now being removed, is regarded as indicating that the long looked for extension of the Great Northern from Watford City to New Rockford is not to materialize for some years to come.

MONUMENT TO EARLY FRENCH EXPLORER IS SET ASIDE AT SANISH

Mount Hi Crow Designated Verendrye National Park in Wilson's Proclamation

Sanish, S. D., July 25.—Mount Hi Crow, a lofty eminence on the east banks of the Missouri from which Verendrye, the French explorer, and his son spied out the land prior to crossing the Big Muddy en route from the head of Lake Superior to the Rockies, 60 years before Lewis and Clark made the same expedition, has been designated by President Wilson as the site of the Verendrye national monument. The Frenchman explored this territory about 1740, using an ancient bull boat, of the Welch coracle type, which is found in use here among the natives, as a means of navigation. The monument is to be in charge of the national park service, and there will be included in the reservation 250 acres surrounding Mount Hi Crow, which is second in altitude in North Dakota only to Sentinel Butte, far to the south in the Bad Lands.

STANDING ROCK HAY SAVES MANY HERDS IN CENTRAL SECTION

Washburn Man Reports Grass is Plentiful and Cheap on Reservation

Washburn, N. D., July 25.—Martin Hoyer, back from Standing Rock reservation, brings the most encouraging news stockmen have had this summer. He states the reservation has had an abundance of rain, that there is plenty of hay, and that land for hay purposes may be leased for 25 cents per acre, while the freight to this point is but $1.50 per ton by boat. This will mean the salvation of many McLean county herds, which otherwise would be sacrificed to the drought prevailing in this section.

Pinto Rides While Master Drives; 'Twos Not Always Thustwise

Baker, Mont., July 25.—The new order of ranch was indicated when Gus Crawford, an old hook'em cow of Camp Creek, S. D., drove into town with his pony, weighing about 700 pounds, comfortably seated in the tonneau of his car, the pinto got away, and Mr. Crawford, giving chase in his car, located him in the bad lands south and west of here. The distance home being too great for the pony to make on its own pins, in the time Mr. Crawford had to spare, he induced the mount to clamber into the rear compartment of the car, where Mr. Horse seemed to be highly enjoying his novel experience.

AFTER TWO YEARS

Bismarck Testimony Remains Unshaken.

Time is the best test of truth. Here is a Bismarck story that has stood the test of time. It is a story with a point which will come straight home to many of us.

J. R. Williams, 212 S. Sixth St., says: "I was bothered for six weeks or more with a constant dull, throbbing ache in the small of my back. I exerted myself in any way, sharp twinges caught me and I could hardly move. I was tired and languid and the irregular and too frequent passages of the kidney secretions caused much annoyance. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and a very sign of kidney trouble left."

OVER TWO YEARS LATER Mr. Williams said: "During the fall and winter I tried a remedy for my kidneys, as the shooting of pain in the lumbar region was wearing on my nerves and affecting my work. I always find Doan's Kidney Pills beneficial." Price for all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Williams has twice publicly recommended. MOTOR TRUCK SUCCESS

STILL IN ITS INFANCY

The future of new lines of manufacturing endeavor is more widely discussed than that of motor truck building. During the last 12 months, the increase in the commercial vehicle business has been the talk of the business world. Its success has been well nigh phenomenal and yet there are those who insist that the success already attained only marks the beginning of an era of growth which will rival anything which has occurred in the passenger automobile field.

Among the men directly responsible for the development of the motor truck to its present high state of efficiency is E. A. Williams, Jr., head of the Garford Motor Truck company of Lima, O., and he is among those who refer to the success of the industry as still being in its infancy. Today, the commercial vehicle business is simply a healthy, growing child, he declares, and its tremendous possibilities are yet to be realized.

"Although the advantages of the motor truck are more widely recognized today than ever before, there are many reasons," said Mr. Williams, "why we, who understand their efficiency, believe that the present popularity of that type of vehicle is but the beginning of a splendid era of success."

"The advantages of the motor truck, from the standpoint of business efficiency, economy and endurance, have been most satisfactorily demonstrated. The additional motor truck service during the last few months has been the biggest selling factor in the history of the business."

"My son has also been greatly benefited by Peruna this winter and I would advise any one suffering with Catarrh to give Peruna a trial."

Those who object to liquid medicines can procure Peruna Tablets.

"It is not for glory, or for riches, or for honor that we fight, but for liberty alone which no good man loses but with his life."

DEATH OF J. W. FOLEY

With the death of James W. Foley of Medora there passes away one who was exceptionally well equipped to write the story of North Dakota's history. The files of The Tribune contain many interesting reminiscences from his pen. He came to this section when the rancher was still king, but before the supremacy of the tillers of the soil. He witnessed the transition from a purely "cow" country to one of the garden spots of the West where diversified farming was becoming more and more general.

He was a welcome contributor to these columns and comments on North Dakota history were always made in a vigorous and trenchant style. Mr. Foley was a trained soldier and when he wielded the pen, there was always a sturdy militancy evident in his style.

The story of his association with the Marquis de Mores is well known throughout the slope. He went through that experiment and lived to realize that the romantic and picturesque Frenchman was generations ahead of his time and much too utopian in his ideas.

Medora will not be the same without its historian and prophet. He delighted in pointing out to the tourists the mysteries of the Band Lands and to recount Indian lore and incidents of pioneer days when Roosevelt and De Mores gave lustre to that region.

NEED OF PATRIOTS

Germany is not facing America and her allies single-handed and alone. She also has allies and friends.

Austria, Bulgaria and Turkey all in their way are serviceable, the spy system is valuable.

But none of these, powerful and dangerous as they are, can be named as the Kaiser's most potent allies.

We can fight Austria, Bulgarian and Turkish soldiers. We can catch spies and hang them. But it almost seems as if we must wait years before we can even put scores with the Kaiser's best friends. For they are safe within our American holy of holies.

The have seats in the United States senate. They are free to do their dirty work. They can fight the American people with impunity. They can block American war plans. They can cunningly plan to starve the American stomach and paralyze the American military arm.

And they can do this under the guise and color of all kinds of specious pleas. They can prate about their sacredness of the constitution. They can foam about the viciousness of the draft system. All these things are merely the words of masked hypocrites and traitors.

Every senator who blocks war plans aids the German enemy.

Every senator who blocks the administration's aviation program grants the Kaiser precious time to now down our own American regulars, as well as the English, French and Russian armies.

The times call for real Americans.

The crisis calls for real patriots. Under the closure rule the senate recently adopted, after another flagrant exhibition of pro-Germanism, the power exists to cut off time-killing and German serving debate. The question is whether there are in the presumably American senate enough American senators to force through American laws designated to aid the American people and to help the American army and navy win a victory for the American flag.

THE BELL BOY FATE.

Some time the bell boy Fate will page you in the great hotel of life. Will you be ready? Opportunity will be at the other end of the long distance wire, waiting to talk to you. The connection will be up perhaps three minutes, and if you're not at the receiver within that limit the wire may never be open again.

Where will the bell boy Fate find you?

Will you be in your bed, sleep and den beyond awakening?

Will you be in the bar, chained to a brass rail and unable to realize the moment of the imperative summons?

At table, floundered with food? In the lobby, in a business conference with a buyer or a seller, alert and upspringing the moment your name sounds out?

Life's caravansary is a busy hotel, with many guests. Calls are paged but once, then forgotten.

When the bell boy Fate calls you for your conference with Destiny, better be in your right mind.

THE HILLMAN
 BY E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

CHAPTER I.—On a trip through the English Cumberland country the breakdown of her automobile forces Louise Maurel, a famous London actress, to spend the night at the farm home of John and Stephen Strange.

CHAPTER II.—At dinner Louise discovers that the brothers are woman-hating recluses.

CHAPTER III.—Next morning she discovers that John, the younger brother, has recently come into a large fortune in company with him she explores the farm.

CHAPTER IV.—In a talk with him she is disturbed by his rigid moral principles and finds that his wealth has created no desire for any other life than the simple one he is leading.

CHAPTER V.—Three months later, unable to rid himself of the memory of the actress and in spite of his brother's protests, John goes to London.

CHAPTER VI.—He finds Louise engaged in the rehearsal of a new play, meets her friends and is entertained at luncheon with her by the prince.

CHAPTER VII.—John drives Sophy home and gives him friendly advice about love and life in London. The prince and Louise postpone a little journey they had arranged for.

CHAPTER VIII.—The prince takes John under his social care. Grailott, the playwright, was Louise that both the prince and John have met and the prince will be a dangerous enemy to his rival.

"Well?" the prince asked, as he handed Alda Calavera to her place at his right hand.

"I think not," she replied.

He raised his eyebrows slightly. For a moment he glanced down the supper table with the care of a punctilious host, to see that his guests were properly seated. He addressed a few trivialities to the musical-comedy star who was sitting on his left. Then he leaned once more toward the great dancer.

"You surprise me," he said. "I should have thought that the enterprise would have commended itself to you. You do not doubt the facts?"

"They are obvious enough," she replied. "The young man tried to tell me that he was in love with another woman, and I felt suddenly powerless. I think I must be getting to that age when one prefers to achieve one's conquests with the lifting of a finger."

The prince sighed.

"I shall never understand your sex," he declared. "I should have supposed that the slight effort of resistance would have provided just the necessary stimulus."

She turned her beautiful head and looked at the prince through narrowed eyes.

"After all," she asked, "what should I gain? The young man is, in his way, a splendid work of art. Why should I be vandal enough to destroy it? I shall ask you another question."

The prince slowly sipped the wine from the glass that he was holding to his lips. Then he set it down deliberately.

"Why not?"

"What is your interest? Is it a bet, a whim, or—er—unity?"

"You may count it the latter," the prince replied deliberately.

Calavera laughed softly to herself.

"Now, for the first time," she confessed, "I feel interest. This is where one realizes that we live in the most impossible age of all history. The great noble who seeks to destroy the poor, younger man from the country is powerless to wreak damnation upon him. You cannot make him a pauper nor have him beaten to death. Why are there princes any longer, I wonder? You are only as other men."

"It is an unhappy reflection, but it is the truth," the prince admitted. "My ancestors would have disposed of this young man as I should a troublesome fly, and it would have cost him no more than a few silver pieces and a sack of wheat. Today, alas, conditions are different. It will cost us more."

She smiled for a moment with the smile upon her lips which as yet she had scarcely tasted.

"I am feeling," she remarked, "tinglingly oriental—like Cleopatra. The sensation pleases me. We are bargaining, are we not?"

"We shall not bargain," the prince interrupted softly. "It is you who shall name your price."

She raised her eyes and dropped them again.

"The prince has spoken," she murmured.

He touched her fingers for a moment with his, as if to seal their compact; then he turned once more to the lady upon his left.

CHAPTER XII.

Seyre House was one of the few mansions in London which boasted a luncheon hall as well as a picture gallery. Although the long table was laid for forty guests, it still seemed, with its shaded lights and its profusion of flowers, like an oasis of color in the middle of the huge, somberly lighted apartment. Some of the faces of the guests were well-known to John through their published photographs; to others he had been presented by the prince upon their arrival. He was seated between a young American star of musical comedy and a lady who had only recently dropped from the social firmament through the medium of the divorce court, to return to the theater of her earlier fame. Both showed every desire to converse with him between the intervals of eating and drinking, but were constantly brought to a pause by John's lack of knowledge of current topics. After her third glass of champagne, the lady who had recently been a countless announced her intention of taking him under her wing.

"Someone must tell you all about things," she insisted. "What you need is a guide and a chaperon. Won't I do?"

"Perfectly," he agreed.

"Fair play?" protested the young lady on his left, whose name was Rosie Sharon. "I spoke to him first."

"Jolly bad luck!" Lord Amerton drawled from the other side of the table. "Neither of you have an earthly. He's booked. Saw him out with her the other evening."

"I shan't eat any more supper," Rosie Sharon pouted, pushing away her plate.

"You ought to have told us about her at once," the lady who had been a countless declared severely.

John preserved his equality.

"It is to be presumed," he murmured, "that you ladies are both free from any present attachment?"

"Got you there," Amerton chuckled.

"What about Rosie?"

Rosie Sharon sighed.

Rosie Sharon sighed.

"We don't come to the prince's suppers to remember our ties," she forward toward her. With her left hand she waved them back.

"If I have pleased you," she said, "I am so glad! I go now to rest for a little time."

She tightened her clasp upon her companion's arm, and they passed out of the picture gallery and down a long corridor. John felt as if he were walking in a dream. Volition seemed to have left him. He only knew that the still, white hand upon his arm seemed like a vise burning into his flesh.

She led him to the end of the corridor, through another door, into a small room furnished in plain but comfortable fashion.

"We will invade the prince's own sanctum," she murmured. "Before I dance, I drink nothing but water. Now I want some champagne. Will you fetch me some?"

She sank back upon a divan as she spoke. John turned to leave the room, but she called him back.

"Come here," she invited, "close to my side. I can wait for the champagne. Tell me, why you are so silent? And my dancing—that pleased you?"

He felt the words stick in his throat. "Your dancing was indeed wonderful," he stammered.

"It was for you," she whispered, her voice growing softer and lower. "It was for you I danced. Did you like it?"

Her arms stole toward him. The unnatural calm with which she had finished her dance seemed suddenly to pass. Her bosom was rising and falling more quickly. There was a faint spot of color in her cheek.

"It was wonderful," he told her. "I will get you the champagne."

Her lips were parted. She smiled up at him.

"Go quickly, and come back quickly, and come back quickly!"

He left the room and passed out again into the picture gallery before he had the least idea where he was. The band was playing a waltz, and one or two couples were dancing. The people seemed suddenly to have become like puppets in some strange, unreal dream. He felt an almost feverish longing for the open air, for a long draft of the fresh sweetness of the night, far away from this overheated atmosphere charged with unnamable things.

As he passed through the farther doorway he came face to face with the prince.

"Where are you going?" the latter asked.

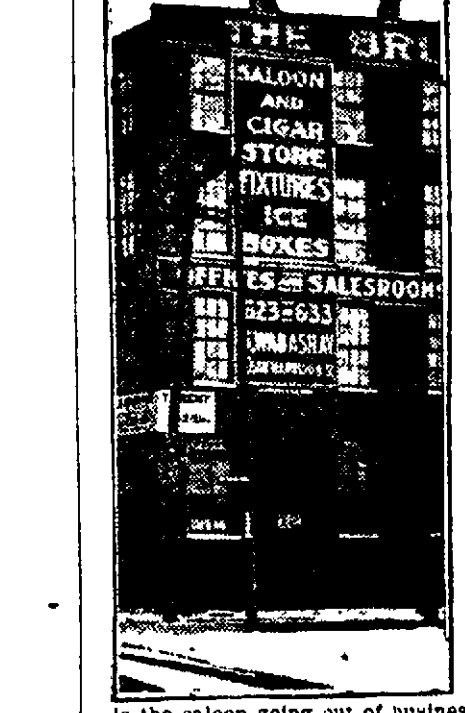

"Mademoiselle Calavera has asked me to get her some champagne," he answered.

The prince smiled.

"I will see that it is sent to her at once," he promised. "You are in my sanctum, are you not? You can pursue your tete-a-tete there without interruption. You are very much envied."

"Mademoiselle Calavera is there," John replied. "As for me, I am afraid I shall have to go now."

IS SALOON DOOMED?

Is the saloon going out of business? Photograph shows the largest factory in the United States for the manufacture of bar fixtures and saloon furniture in Chicago. On the corner is the "For Rent" sign. The factory was operated by the Brunswick-Balke-Collender company, manufacturers of billiard tables and furniture and equipment for other sporting establishments. But bar fixtures and saloon furniture making has been discontinued.

The mule taked from the prince's lips. His eyebrows came slowly together.

"You are leaving?" he repeated. "I must," John insisted. "I can't help it. Forgive my behaving like a boorish lout. I must go. Good night!"

Calavera stretched out his hand, but he was too late.

John found himself, after a few minutes' hurried walking in Piccadilly. He turned abruptly down Duke street and made his way to St. James' park. From here he walked slowly eastward. When he reached the Strand, however, the storm in his soul was still unabated. He turned away from the Milan. The turmoil of his passions drove him to the thoughts of flight. Half an hour later he entered St. Pancras station.

"What time is the next train north to Kendal or Carlisle?" he inquired.

The porter stared at him. John's evening clothes were spattered with mud, his hair was matted, his coat and face, and his shirt was ruined. It was not only his clothes, however, which attracted the man's attention. There was the strained look of a fugitive in John's face, a fugitive dying from some threatened fate.

"The newspaper train at five thirty is the earliest, sir," he said. "I don't know whether you can get to Kendal by it, but it stops at Carlisle."

John looked at the clock. There was an hour to wait. He wandered about the station, gloomy, chilled, deserted. The place seemed weird and he strolled out into the streets. By chance he left the station by the short exit as on the day of his arrival in London. He stopped short.

How could he have forgotten, even for a moment? This was not the world which he had come to discover. This was just some plague-spot upon which he had stumbled. Through the murky dawn and across the ugly streets he looked into Louise's drawing-room. She would be there waiting for him on the morrow!

Louise! The thought of her was like a sweet, purifying stimulant. He felt the throbbing of his nerves soothed. He felt himself growing calm. The place seemed less strange. He remembered the last night's hours as if they were yesterday.

His wandering for the night were over.

On Comfort Bag Sewing

Since the last meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary to Company A steps have been taken to make comfort bags for the boys. President Mrs. Peter Reid and Mrs. Willson, the secretary, have been busy toward this end, and Mrs. H. Treacy has been an able assistant and is going to help others in the work. There will be 150 of these needed, and those in charge are anxious that the women of the city help them make these up. Those who do not have material to make the bags may secure same through Mrs. Reid, and Mrs. Tracy has found the following style of bag to be approved by the captain, who expressed a desire for one.

They are to be made of khaki, lined and fitted with needle flap, and will contain the following: The left side, common pins, cable-splicing shears; initialed tape; tape needle; roll of tape, celluloid thread holder, thimble. LONG TUNIC STAMPS SKIRT AS LATEST

New York, July 25.—The long tunic in odd forms appears as a feature of fall skirts. The new tunic almost never extends all of the way around the figure. It is sometimes set on only across the back and sides of a skirt. It seems necessary to edge a tunic with some heavier material. A band of velvet makes an attractive finish on a skirt of black crepe mator. Narrow bands of seal skin are also used on the more elaborate skirts.

Mary Pickford in "Less Than Dust" at Auditorium

Mary Pickford is here. No not the Mary of flesh and blood, but carefully filmed and canned. Manager Vesperman is taking no chances on "Mary." Last time the young lady was billed she missed the train, and set all schedules awry. But Mr. Vesperman has got "Mary" laid away on ice until tomorrow night, safe from the heat rays and she will positively appear at two shows at the Auditorium tomorrow evening in "Less Than Dust."

This film has created a sensation wherever it was shown. Her appearance will have an additional interest in that it will mark her first presentation here of a production made under her own guidance and directed by her own company, the Mary Pickford Film Corporation. It will be the most elaborate production in which she has ever been seen, one that has been given a masterly direction by John Emerson. Its scenes are laid in India and England. Miss Pickford playing the part of a cast-away, a girl of English birth who, having been adopted by a Hindu sword maker, is reared among the natives of the lower caste. Its story is full of realism and dramatic strength with an appealing love story in which the girl and a young English officer are the central figures. Miss Pickford has surrounded herself with a cast of distinction with a company of unusual size appearing in the various elaborate and picturesque scenes.

Some Ice Cream Recipes

By Biddy Bye
Ice cream can be made at home for less than half the cost of the commercial article, and freezers are to be had in many sizes and at many prices—reasons enough, it would seem, for an immediate adventure in making frozen desserts.

From 10 to 15 minutes is usually required for freezing, and the process is certainly more comfortable than baking a pie. One part of egg and three parts of ice usually produces good results. Turn the freezer slowly at first, and more rapidly near the finish. After draining off the brine, cover the can with unsalted ice, and wrap with newspapers and blankets. Ice cream should ripen several hours before serving.

NATIONAL BREAD ECONOMY

Our Annual Waste $20,000,000

By Ida C. Bailey Allen.
Editor Housewife Forum, Pictorial Review, author Mrs. Allen's Cook Book, lecturer Westfield Domestic Science Schools.

It is indeed time for the American housewife to correct her "unpardonable" fault of waste and extravagance. When that phrase of President Wilson's was first circulated through the country, the majority of housewives metaphorically shrugged their shoulders, and mentally, if not audibly said, "This denunciation does not apply to me."

This was not because the American woman was unwilling to curtail waste, but because material had been so reasonable and money so plentiful that the necessity for absolute conservation had never occurred to her, and she felt that her attempts at economy had already made her mistress of the situation. But in the meantime, even in the most thrifty households, a tremendous waste had been going on. It was in the form of leaks, a little here and a little there, that in themselves were apparently nothing, but that in the aggregate amounted to tons upon tons of weight and thousands upon thousands of dollars in value. In other words, the housewife has been so bound in by her own horizon that she has missed the vision of the concerted efforts of the combined women of our nation.

Now she must mobilize. A mighty army to conserve waste must be formed. The first and most important product to be conserved is wheat, that there may be bread for us, our children and the allied nations. Now there are many ways in which bread, and therefore wheat, may be conserved. The first method that has been discussed—that is the elimination of bread from the diet—can not be considered, because there is no one other food that has an equivalent place in the diet. This applies to plain white bread, whole wheat bread, rye bread, Boston brown bread, breads of all kinds, for each contains a certain amount of muscle-making material, a certain amount of energy, certain properties which feed the nerves and blood and others which store up reserve force in the form of fat.

Obviously, then, the lifting of bread from the daily menu should be the last resort, and will not be necessary, even in the poorest families, if it is treated as a food, not an accessory, and if the housewife will do everything in her power to save every crumb.

In most households the meal has been planned without regard to the food value of bread itself. This has been tacked on. For instance, a dinner that contains potatoes, cottage pudding and bread, has too much starch. The potatoes may be omitted, the bread and cottage pudding supplying all that is necessary. A supper that includes rice, bread and cake will be dietetically bettered by the elimination of either the rice or the cake, the bread furnishing the necessary constituents.

In other words, bread is, in spite of the present high prices, the most inexpensive food because it contains the largest amount of "aried nutriment" of any food that may be purchased, and because it combined properly into the menu other foods such as potatoes and rice which have been included through habit, may be eliminated. This means an actual saving in cash and at the same time an increase in family health, because the over-amount of starch, which has figured in our national menus will have been decreased. This means, in turn, less auto-intoxication, fewer sick headaches, less indigestion and fewer doctor's bills.

Bread and Cheese Pudding.
1 1/2 cupsful crumbled dry bread crumbs, 2 eggs, 1 teaspoonful salt, few grains paprika, 1/2 teaspoonful pepper, 2 tablespoonsful good oleomargarine, melted, 1 pint milk 1 1/2 cupsful chopped American cheese.
Scald crumbs in milk, beat together the other ingredients. Pour over the hot milk, transfer to a buttered baking dish, set in a pan of hot water and bake until firm in a moderate oven.

Bread Savory.
6 onions, 3 cupsful milk 1 1/2 cupsful dried crumbled entire wheat bread crumbs, 2 tablespoonsful salt, 1/2 cupful minced ham or smoked beef, 2 eggs slightly beaten, 1 teaspoonful salt, 1/2 teaspoonful pepper.
Slice the onions thin and cook till soft and yellow in the fat. Then add the other ingredients in the order given, pour into a baking dish, rubbed with a little ham fat, and cook gently until set.

CAPITAL FIGHT STIRS INTEREST IN BALL GAME

New Rockford and Bismarck Teams Billed for Two Games This Week

BUSINESS HOUSES WILL CLOSE FOR BIG SERIES

Both Cities Have Secured New Talent and the Contests are to Be for Blood

So keen is their enthusiasm for their respective teams that fans of Bismarck and New Rockford have seriously suggested that the contest for the capital of North Dakota, which Bismarck has and New Rockford covets, be allowed to rest on the outcome of a series of games to be played here Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

In preparation for the approaching series both cities have invested liberally in players. Bismarck has added a number of new men from Western, Central and the late Northern league, and it believes it has the strongest aggregation which ever has trotted onto a North Dakota diamond. New Rockford has been cleaning up on all comers in the northern part of the state and it has spared no expenses to build up its team.

Every Bismarck business house and probably a majority of city, county and state offices will close for the games Friday and Saturday, while Sunday is reserved for the "big game" which will be the largest that ever has witnessed a capital city baseball game.

The New Rockford State Center has the following to say of the "serious" as Ring Lardner would call it. "Because of rivalry between the two cities, the ball games to be played between the teams of New Rockford and Bismarck on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, July 27, 28 and 29 will be contests for blood. Bismarck expects it to be a close game. In fact, they are sending to the Central League for four players to add them in the games against the New Rockford team. They aver that they are going to win those contests. If it costs them $5,000 New Rockford's team has a like feeling, whether or no. They are going to play real ball.

"To show how much the people of Bismarck think of the interest in the games, Bismarck's business houses, stores and offices will be closed during the hours of the opening ball game between the two teams on Friday afternoon."

Bantams Make Great Fighters in Sport, So U. S. Wants Them for War

many of the greatest fighters were small men.

It is not difficult to find undersized men in athletics who have been winners in their fields of endeavor, little men who have outstripped their larger brothers.

Three years ago the Boston Braves won the National league championship and world series. The greatest pitcher of the outfit was Dick Rudolph, a short stubby fellow, who had been thought too small by McGraw and was not given a chance with the Giants. The shortstop of the club was Rabbit Maranville, one of the smallest men in baseball and one of the greatest infielders the game has produced.

Baseball has produced other great "little men." Eddie Groh, administrative, Eddie Collins is short and stubby and there are many others.

Boxing has produced many "little champions." Johnny Wildo, flyweight champion of the world, probably could win against any of the present-day bantams. Jack Dillon, the little giant, is one of the greatest little men to ever batter his way through the big heavy-weight class. Joe Walcott, the greatest of welterweights, was a little stubby fellow.

Elmer Oliphant, West Point's great all-around star, is much smaller than his teammates. Football has produced many great little men. Casey, of Harvard, is a little fellow; Rex Clark, the old Indiana halfback, was short and stubby.

Golf has given us Rob Jones, the boy wonder, and Walter J. Travis.

A number of our great distance runners have been little men. John Paul Jones and Norman Taber, two of the greatest milers, were little fellows.

You can store a lot of fight and stamina in a small body. Uncle Sam knows that—no wonder he permits the organization of bantam regiments.

DEATH BRINGS FORGIVENESS FOR LES D'ARCY FROM COUNTRYMEN

Australia has forgiven Les D'Arcy. Death has caused Australian sportsmen to quash their indictment against the world's most unfortunate slacker and grant him a full pardon.

This is the word that comes from Snowy Baker, Australian boxing promoter, who has written friends here that a fund has been started to raise a monument to the memory of the former middleweight champion of the world, who paid so dearly for his mistakes.

"Australians regret deeply that death has cut short such a promising career," Baker wrote in a recent bout between Jeff Smith and Jimmy Flabby the great audience, which has just learned of D'Arcy's death, paid its respects to his memory by standing with bared heads for 10 seconds after the announcer had repeated the details of his death."

play first, second, short or third with equal skill.

He also resembles Zim, in that he takes a terrific clout at the ball, and prefers hitting at a near wild pitch than at a ball grooving the plate.

That's one of Zim's idiosyncrasies. He usually drives triples or homers from wild pitches and fans on balls cutting the center of the pan.

Every club in the National league was after Miller, the Cubs getting an option over the money route.

TWO YOUNG HURLERS GIVE MUCH PROMISE

EARNING THEIR CAKES IN BIG LEAGUES.

(By JACK VETOCK, ST. LOUIS International News Service Staff Writer.)

Two young pitchers who are earning their cakes in the big leagues this season show promise of putting up records before they outlive their usefulness on the rubber that will give them a place in that select set which includes only the greatest slabmen of the game.

One of these two youngsters is Ferdinand "Stubblefield" Schupp, the brilliant young southpaw of the Giants. The other is Stanley Coveleskie, the sensation of the Cleveland Indians.

Schupp is perhaps the most remarkable of the pair, because he is a southpaw, and as a rule the southpaws have a tough time when they turn their steps toward the pitching ball of fame.

McGraw has kept his weather eye on the work of young Mr. Schupp for five years. He has always maintained that Schupp had the makings of a wonderful pitcher, but though Ferdie failed to show him anything sensational in the pitching line until last fall he clung to him, and the season of 1917 has so far proved that McGraw knew what he was about.

Schupp is in his twenty-fifth year, and he is without a doubt the best southpaw pitcher in the National league. He is considered by many to be equally as good as Ruth and Leonard, the famous Boston porters, and from the pitching line has done so far this season that is no great argument that can be advanced to offset Schupp's standing in full handed ranks.

Schupp has a formidable young rival on his side, and today he stands out as a pitching phenom who is just beginning to come into his own as a winner.

Coveleskie's work with the Cleveland Indians has been one of the best features of the season. So far as pitching goes, he has pitched against every club in the league, and has come through on the long end of a big majority of his games. He is one of the most effective pitchers in the big leagues this year, for he has started already to pile up a string of shutouts. Last year he allowed an average of 3.41 runs per nine innings pitched, but his 1917 record will show a smaller percentage.

Compared to his southpaw brother on the Detroit club, Stanley Coveleskie promises to do the most to plaster fame on the family moniker, for although the older Coveleskie is a wonderful performer, his kid brother is coming on so fast that he bids fair to pass him as a winning pitcher, and at that he has his work cut out for him.

BEAUTY OF MOTORS

Really Handsome Cars Stand Out and Receive Praise.

THEIR NUMBER QUITE SMALL

Experts on Designs Blame Condition on American Idea of Quantity—Some Difficulties Cited Artist Must Face.

The really beautiful automobile stands out as one of the elect, and never fails to receive immediate attention and cheerful praise. Yet the number of motor cars that measure up to the canons of artistic praise is small. This is so because the art of creating them is so little practiced in America.

The American custom of quality production offers but little chance for art. Where a manufacturer aims for volume of production the creation of beautiful designs interferes with it. Only the maker whose production is relatively limited undertakes to satisfy the canons of artistic taste.

Hedged in by Restrictions.

Automobile body building is hedged about by many restrictions. It is only in rare cases that the body designer is permitted to lay his own foundation, but must take the chassis as it is turned over to him by the mechanical department, and endeavor to do the best he can on a foundation planned by someone else, who may not have the slightest conception of beauty.

Artistic bodies need to be in exact proportion to the hood, but since this is determined by the length of the motor, and since the length of the body is determined by the wheel base, the body designer has not much latitude.

Within a definite space back of the motor a fixed and arbitrary number of persons must be seated and seated comfortably. Doors for entrance must be provided. Seats must be high enough, but not too high, and the height of the body must be kept in relation to the height of the seats, and of the hood.

If, with these restrictions, the body designer succeeds in turning out a harmonious car, he has done well. Yet he has not really done well unless it has been planned so that it will take color combinations most effectively.

To be sure, this will not mean so much if the car is to be painted a solid color, but when this is done it takes the car out of the class of beautiful creations.

Early Ornamentations.

In the early days the more ornamentations in the way of scroll work and trimmings, the more ornate was the car. This was before the day of simplicity, and before makers learned that all these additions to a car simply were so many dust gatherers, which it was well nigh impossible to keep clean.

Considering all the handicaps under which the body designer must work, it is not surprising that so few cars are genuinely artistic in appearance. Building on a foundation laid by mechanics, not artists, restricted to fixed and frequently cramped areas, forced to provide proper doors and seats and when all this is done, turn out a beautiful creation, the designer who does this is distinctly an artist.

MACHINES USED FOR PACKING FREE SEEDS

Uncle Sam has installed a number of intricately built machines made especially for the purpose of packing the little envelopes of free seed that members of congress send to their constituents. The picture shows a battery of these machines in operation. Each of the new machines puts up and seals 800 packages of seed an hour, a task which formerly required the services of four girls working at top speed. One girl operates each machine, which looks very much like a modern typesetting machine, except for the large supply of sacks behind the packers.

RAISE HOGS IS PLEA
Seen as the Quickest Way of Augmenting Meat Supply.

Uncle Sam's Experts Declare That Animal is in a Class by Itself as a Money-maker.

The quickest and surest way of augmenting the meat supply next to the raising of poultry is by raising hogs.
Uncle Sam's department of agriculture points out. The hog is the most important animal to raise for meat and money. He requires less labor, less equipment, less capital, makes greater gains per hundred pounds of concentrates, and reproduces himself faster and in greater numbers than any other domestic animal. As a consumer of by-products the hog has no rival. No other animal equals the large hog in its fat-storing tendency. The most satisfactory meat for shipping long distances on trailers, boat, or wagon, and for long storage after reaching its destination is mess pork. There is no animal which produces more meat and meat products than the hog.

WOOD FROM PUBLIC FORESTS
More Extensive Use of Fuel From National Reserves Urged to Meet Any Possible Coal Shortage.

To meet any possible coal shortage in the west more extensive use of fuel wood from the national forests is urged by the government foresters.
The superintendent of the 1.3 national forests will be instructed to afford all possible facilities to local residents wishing to obtain firewood, which settlers may obtain free for their home use, and which is sold at low rates to persons engaged in hauling in order to sell to others.
Since this fuel is utilized in manually doing its removal it is explained that the use of the forest and the loss of fireman's time which is not reflected in official deterioration of the forest's standpoint, is also a loss of fuel for purposes. The cost in the next 12 months is expected to break all records.

Woodpeckers.
There is a variety of woodpeckers living in California whose main article of diet is acorns. They store away their provisions in a peculiar fashion, boring holes in the bark of the white oak or redwood trees just large enough to fit the kernels and tugging them in, small end first, with their bills.

CITY BOY HAS MADE GOOD
Members of United States Working Reserve "Do Their Bit" on Farms in Various Parts of Country.

According to reports reaching Uncle Sam's department of labor, the city boy has made good on the farm.
More than 20,000 boys have gone into the country to do their bit. These boys are enrolled in the United States Boys' Working reserve. To join the reserve a boy must be sixteen and prove himself physically fit.
From New York city alone, according to word from Arthur F. Payne, actating state director of the Boys' reserve, nearly 2,000 boys were sent out, "without a single complaint from the farmers in regard to these boys."
"Our great difficulty," says Mr.
Payne, "is in supplying the farmers with the number of boys they need." Similar reports were received from Pennsylvania,
Connecticut, New Jersey and other states.

FOUR MINUTE ADDRESS MAKES BIG HIT AT ORPHEUM THEATRE

Rev. George Buzzelle, pastor of St. George's Episcopal church, made the first address of the four minute men who will appear at the moving picture theaters to inform people upon the phases of the great conflict America is now sharing with other nations of the world.

There was intense enthusiasm as he explained the work of the minute men and when the slide of "The Star Spangled Banner" flashed on the Orpheum screen, the audience manifested intense enthusiasm.

Rev. Buzzelle explained the nature of the publicity work to be carried on and then made an appeal for Red Cross workers. He was given the closest attention and the attitude of the patrons of the theater indicated that the work will be a great success. C. L. Young will appear at the theater Friday evening for the four minute address and his topic will be, "Why We Are Fighting."

Rev. Buzzelle will give a four minute talk at the auditorium tomorrow evening between the first and second shows of the Mary Pickford film "Less Than Dust."

Other speakers are being secured and these addresses twice or three times a week promise to be an interesting feature of the war publicity. The federal government is behind the Four Minute Men organization and topics are assigned periodically from Washington, D. C.

JOFFIE HEARS PERISHING AT LAFAYETTE TOMB

Gen. Pershing is here shown addressing French officials and prominent citizens in Paris at Lafayette's tomb. He acknowledged the tribute paid him and his Samurais in France by Marshal Joffre and other French dignitaries. Arrows point to Pershing and Marshal Joffre.

GOOD MATERIAL FOR ATHLETICS SHOWING UP AT FT. LINCOLN

Baseball League Furnished Entertainment at Fort—Bismarck Tonight

The inter-company baseball league at Fort Lincoln is developing some unusually good baseball material.

Each company in the Second battalion has a team, and the schedule calls for three games weekly, on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, at 3:30 p. m. A team representing the entire battalion has been organized, and it will meet Bismarck in its first big game at the fort diamond at 6:30 this evening. There are a number of fast men who have played semi-professional ball in the battalion, and the line-up is a stiff one.

Athletic work is given the entire battalion each afternoon at 3, when the boys are put through a program of track and field events, recreational stunts and outdoor gymnasium work, under the direction of L. E. Goodwin, secretary of the post Y. M. C. A.

Last evening an entertainment was given for the soldier boys. Miss Angelina Waters and Lieut. E. Orchard of Fargo sang; Director Harmon of the battalion band favored with some vocal selections, and the band played several numbers which were decidedly well received.

BAD STOMACHS BUSINESS FAILURES

In this day of high efficiency more failures are due to disordered stomachs than to any other cause. Nothing undermines the body and mind so quickly as Stomach Trouble. It saps the energy and reduces ambition and vitality to a low ebb. Cathartics frequently aggravate the trouble. Overcome quickly your Stomach, Liver and Intestinal Trouble with Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, as it reaches the seat of the disease. Millions have been restored by it. Let one dose of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy convince you today. For sale by Lenhart Drug Co.

QUICK ACTION.

Bismarck's new automobile fire insurance company suffered a loss in the recent fire and George Gussner received his check in full for the amount of his policy within 15 minutes after the company received notice of his loss.

Could anything speak better for this city's automobile fire insurance company than the above paragraph? It is seldom indeed that losses are adjusted and checks written in such a short space of time as did the Mutual company in this instance.

If you own a car and it is not fully covered by insurance have it done today, as you cannot tell what the next 24 hours may bring forth.

Protection is your best purchase.

"War's Women," a stupendous cinema spectacle in six acts is one of the best features of the year at the Orpheum tonight.

To Lower Food Bill Object of Menus Given for War time by Biddy Bye

By BIDDY BYE.
Chop the pennies from all your food bills this week. Keep this principle in mind, and every time you make a purchase, count what you save.

In former menus of this series, potatoes and peas have been set down only once or twice a week; in this, a return is made to the American custom of serving them at least once a day. Most housekeepers can do so and still not be extravagant, if they will cook only the number of potatoes needed for a meal, buy no more than the exact amount of meat required, and chop the pennies from every other item of food on each menu.

Breakfast—Pettijohn with cream, toast, coffee.
Luncheon—Omelet, rolls, sliced fruit and tea.

MILITANT THIEF.
The home of Deputy State Examiner E. A. Thorberg was broken into last evening while the family was sleeping. A diamond ring valued at $150, which reposed in plain view in the same compartment with the gun, was not molested. Mr. Thorberg is inclined to believe that some boy who is pining for adventure got the revolver.

PUT OUT OF BUSINESS.
Three assessment accident insurance companies have been ejected from North Dakota because of their failure to comply with an act passed by the last assembly requiring a deposit of $10,000 with the state insurance department. "The companies eliminated are the Progressive Accident Insurance Co., the American Accident Insurance Co. of Minneapolis, the Business Men's association of Chicago. WON'T LET FIRST WOMAN 'SAMMY' GO TO WAR

MRS. HAZEL BLAUSEN CARTER

Mrs. Carter is the first woman to become a "Sammy," but her clipped hair and olive drab disguise failed to fool army commanders and she must return to her home in Arizona without seeing service at the front. She wanted to accompany her husband, Corporal John Carter, to France, but was discovered on the transport after five days on the Atlantic and sent back on the same transport to New York. Her discovery means not only her return home, but her husband's loss of his commission.

"The Five Tires"

Today—tires cost less than ever

Your tires actually cost you less per mile today than they did a few years ago, —provided you buy the right kind of tires.

In the first place, don't buy a nondescript tire that some dealer has a selfish price motive in selling to you.

Buy a tire with a name behind it—a tire, the quality of which must be so good that the reputation of a great Company is protected.

United States Tires, with the name of the largest rubber manufacturer in the world behind them, are safe tires to buy.

United States Tires are constructed under an exclusive time-tried vulcanizing process that is patented.

They are honestly built with the best materials that the markets of the world afford.
